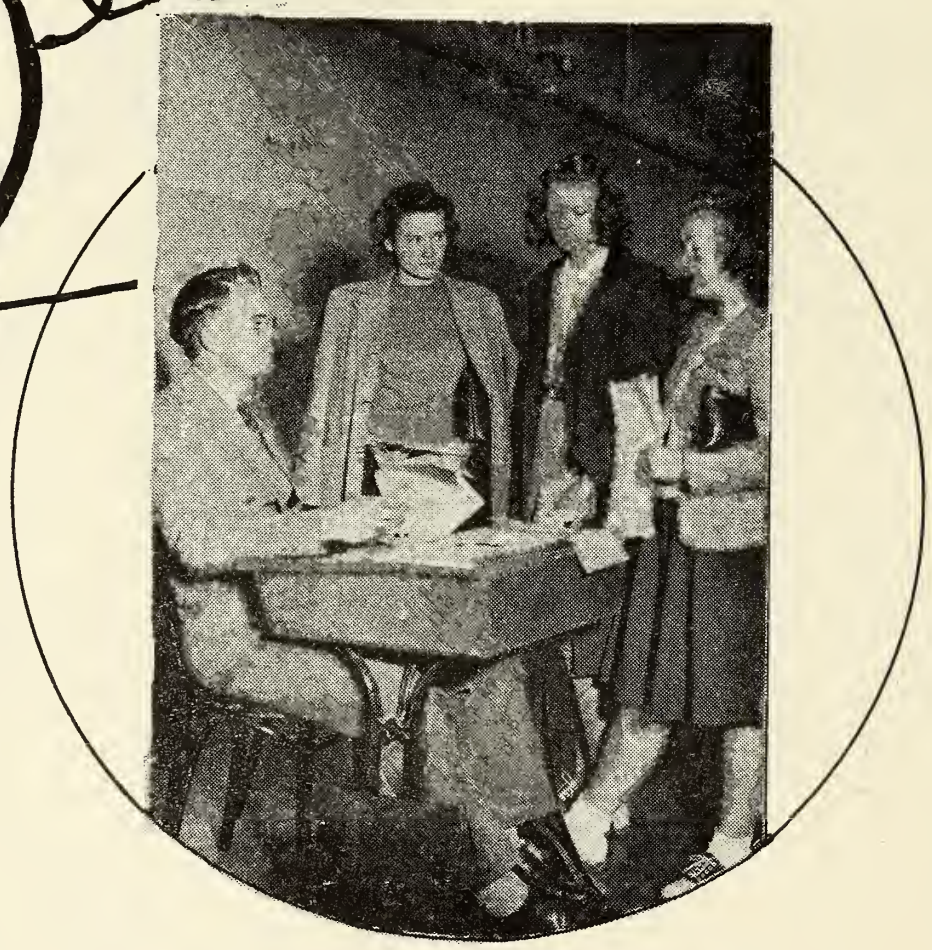
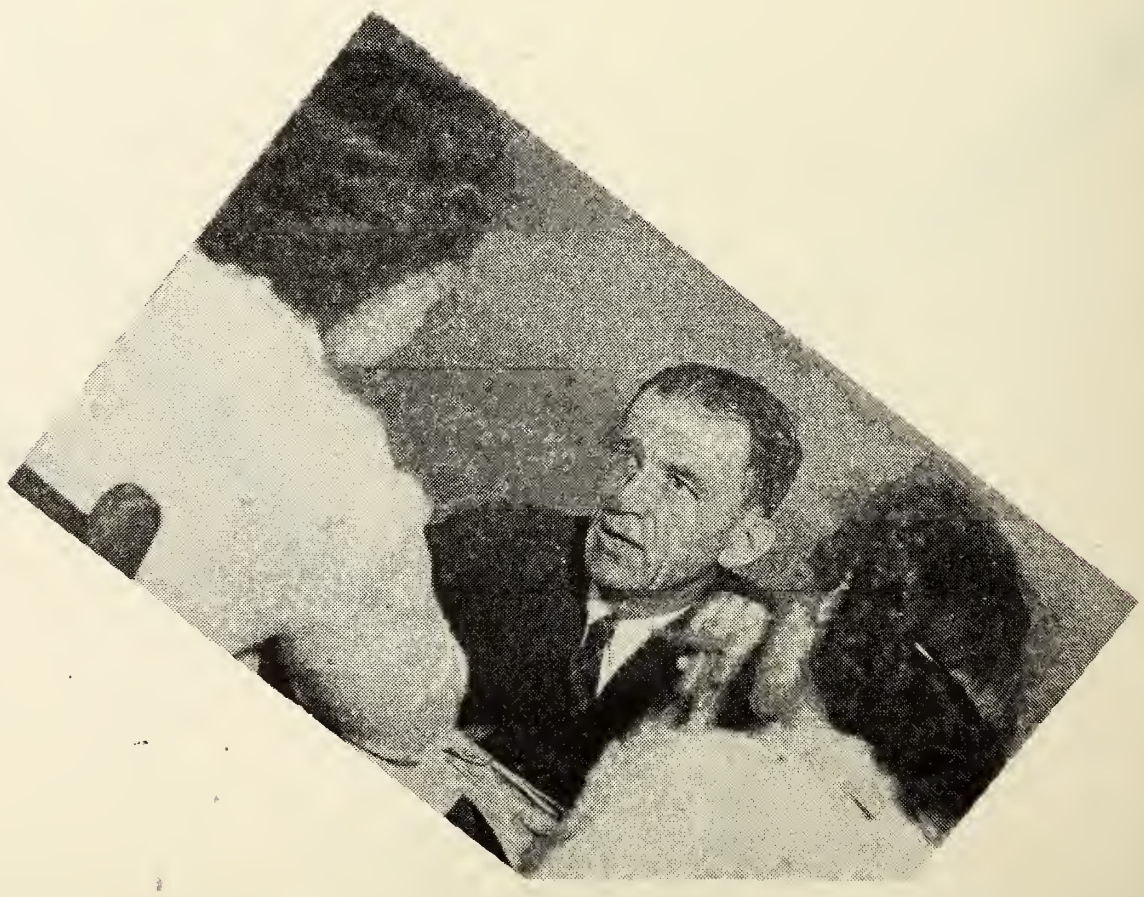
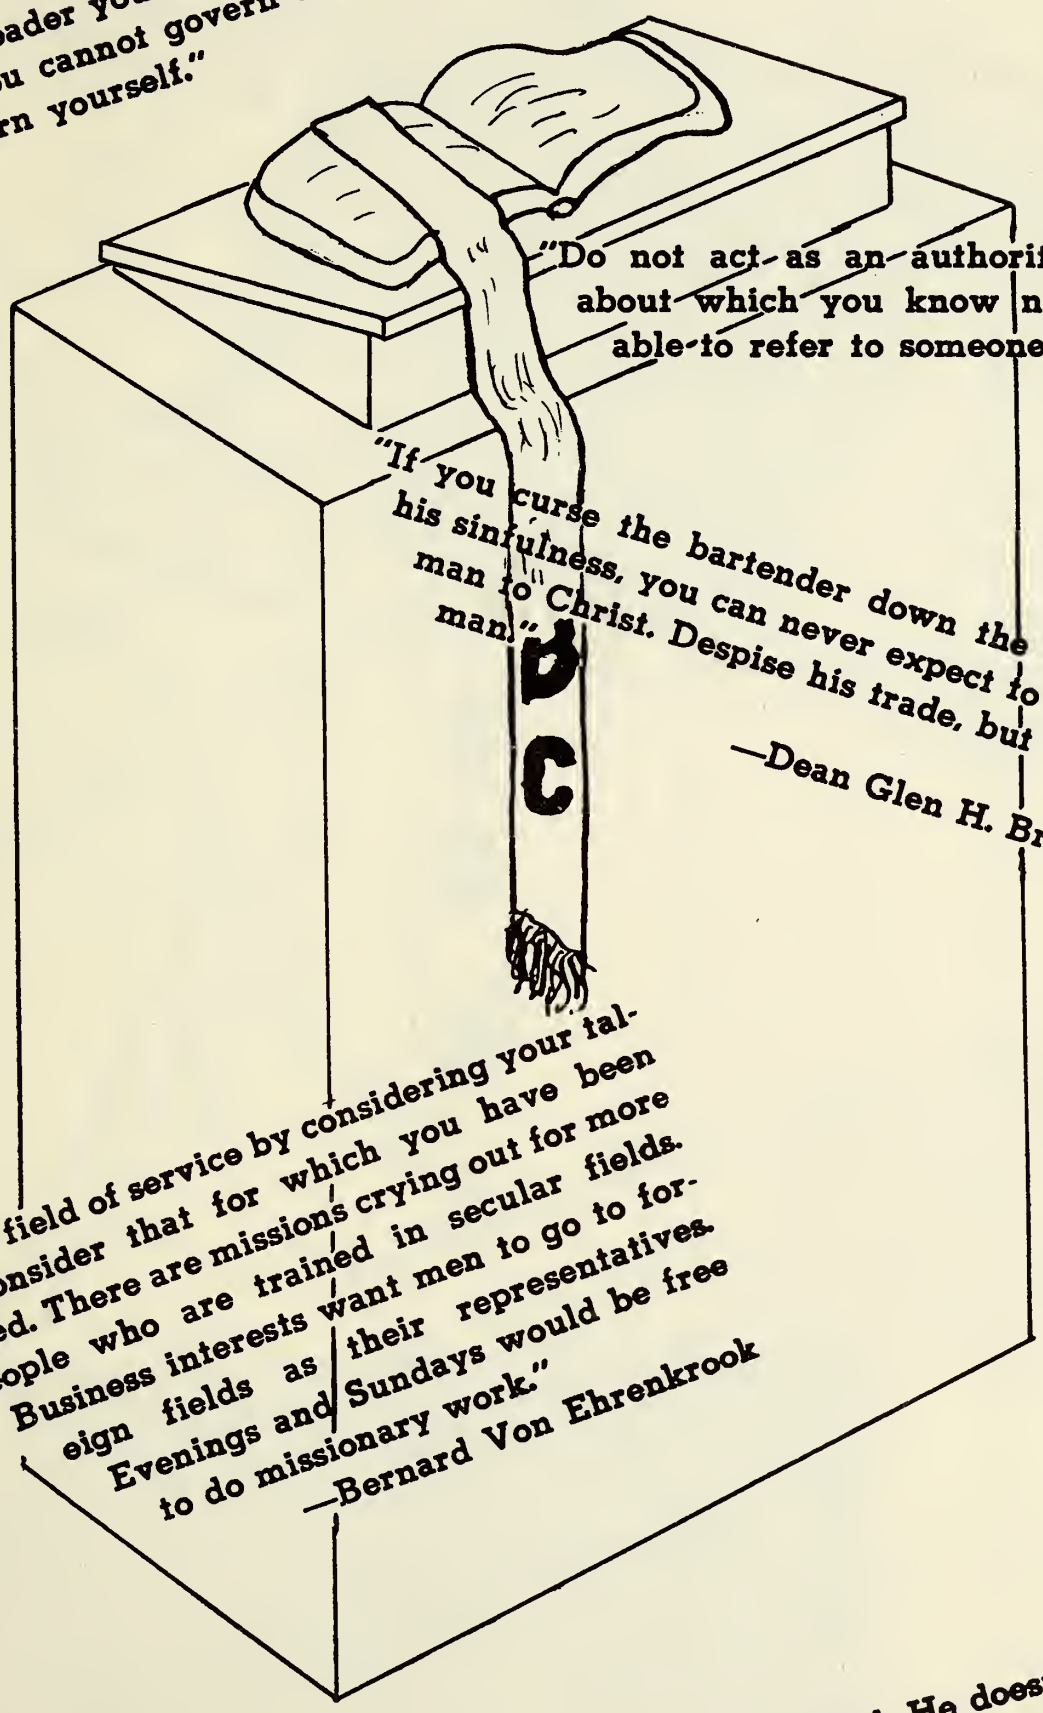
Proverbs 3:6

Registration





"To be a leader you must be responsible for yourself. You cannot govern anyone until you first govern yourself."



"Do not act as an authority on subjects about which you know nothing, but be able to refer to someone who does."

"If you curse the bartender down the street for his sinfulness, you can never expect to win that man to Christ. Despise his trade, but love the man."

—Dean Glen H. Bradford

"Find your field of service by considering your talents. Consider that for which you have been trained. There are missions crying out for more people who are trained in secular fields. Business interests want men to go to foreign fields as their representatives. Evenings and Sundays would be free to do missionary work."

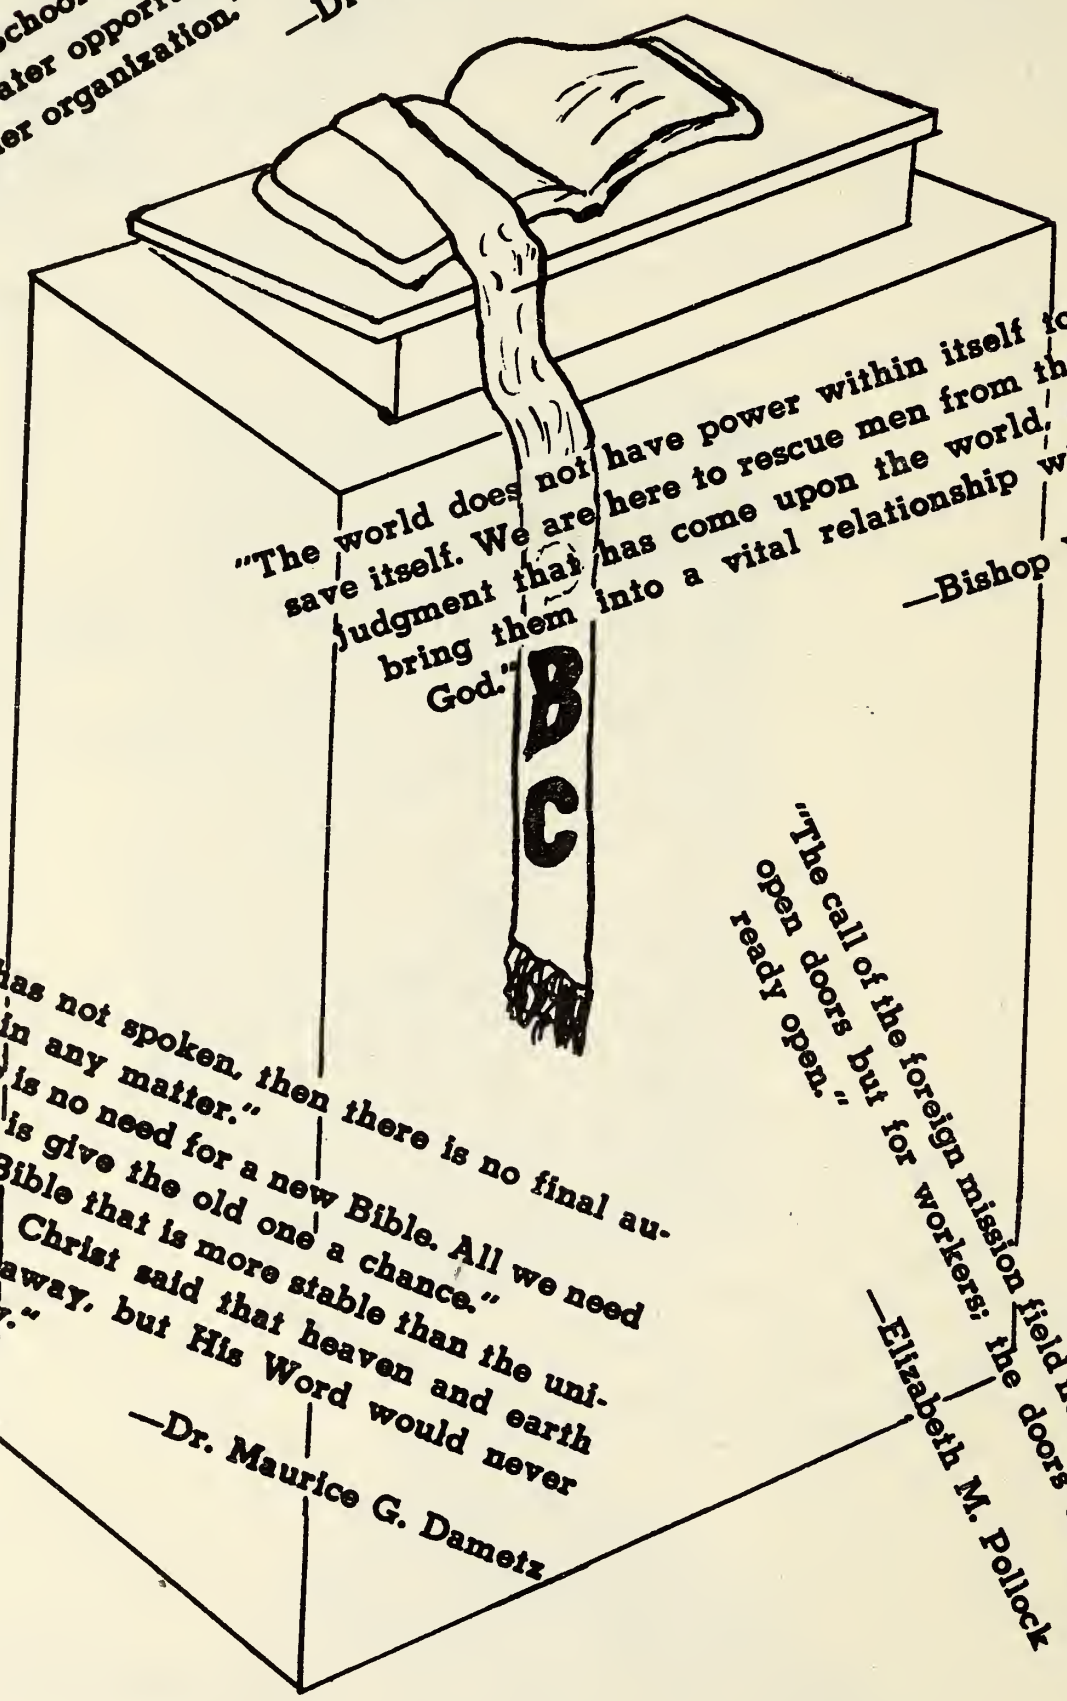
—Bernard Von Ehrenkrook

"When God says to be as a little child, He doesn't mean to speak without thinking, but to have a simple, childlike faith in God."

"The Christian message is always the same, but different generations need a different emphasis."

—W. R. Skillen, Jr.

"The Sunday School is the Church in action. It presents a greater opportunity for evangelism than any other organization." —Dr. A. E. Anderson



"The world does not have power within itself to save itself. We are here to rescue men from the judgment that has come upon the world, to bring them into a vital relationship with God." —Bishop Yost
"If God has not spoken, then there is no final authority in any matter." "There is no need for a new Bible. All we need to do is give the old one a chance." "We have a Bible that is more stable than the universe itself. Christ said that heaven and earth may pass away, but His Word would never pass away." —Dr. Maurice G. Dametz
"The call of the foreign mission field now is not for open doors but for workers; the doors are already open." —Elizabeth M. Pollock

"Learn to go to the Lord first in all matters."
—Mrs. Margaret Laird

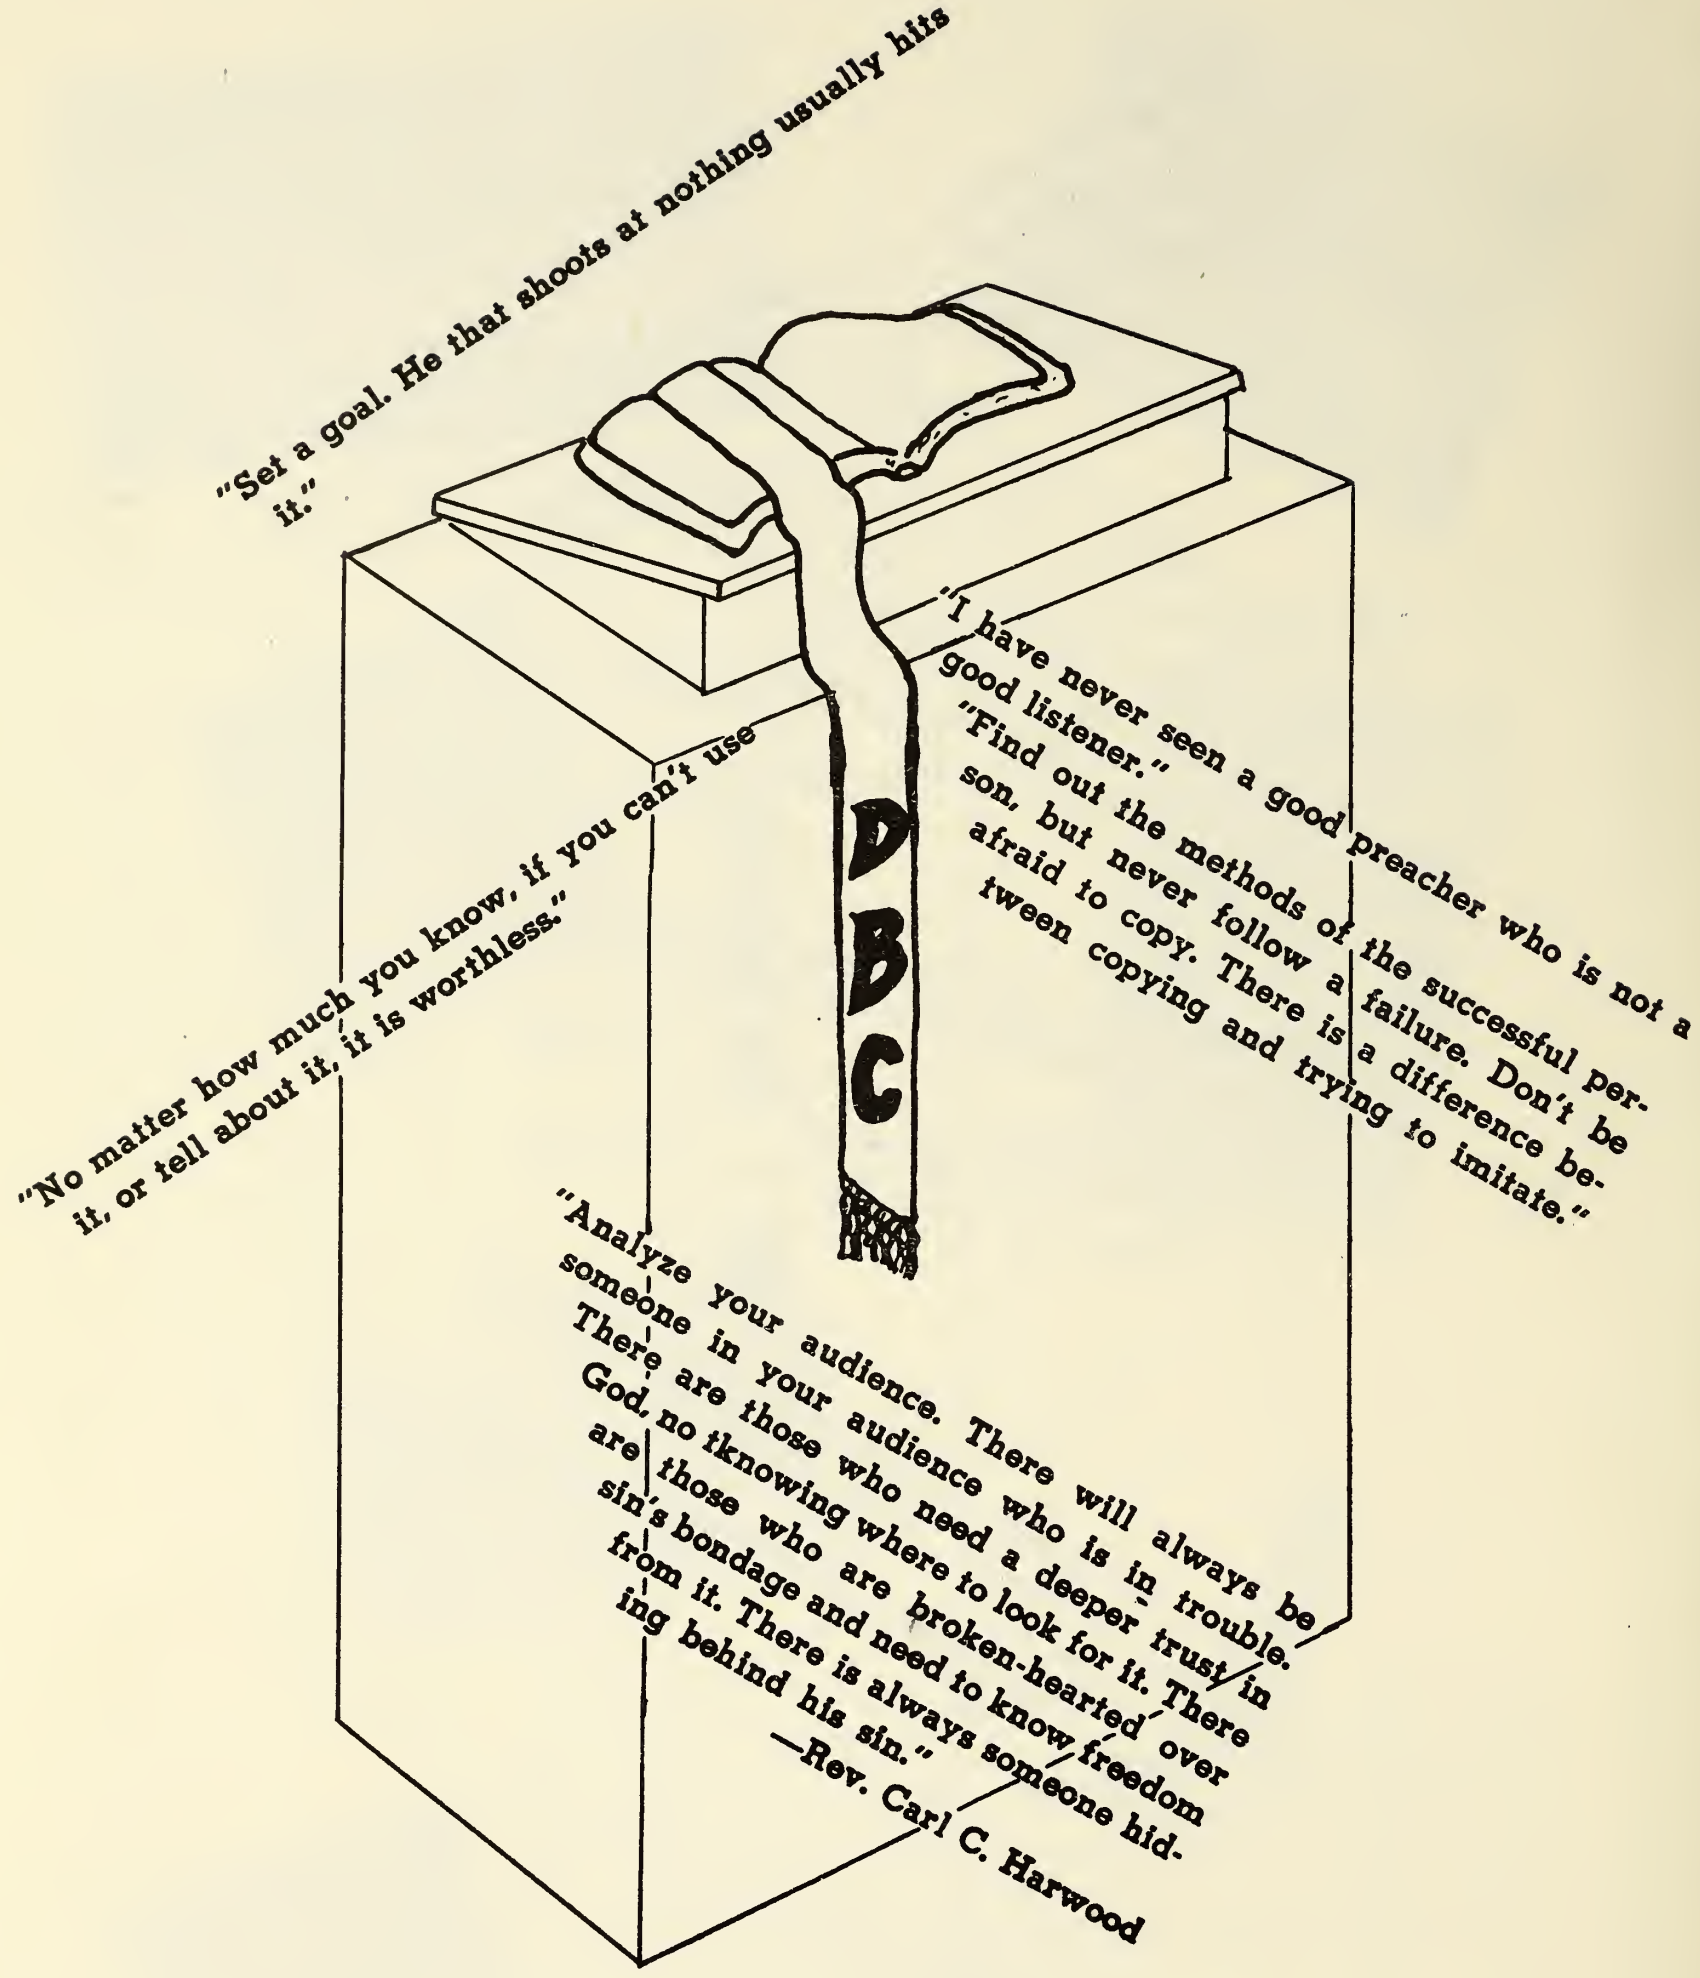
"Egotism is looking at yourself in the mirror through a telescope."
"Six steps in the path of spiritual progress are: vision, humility, illumination, dedication, commission, power."
"If you place the emphasis on the things that the Bible does, you will find yourself preaching a great deal on sin and hell."
"The hammer that breaks the heart of the world is love."
DISC
"Laymen of the churches should realize that they are just as responsible to win souls as the preachers."
"If God is your partner, make your plans large enough to suit Him."
"There must be a hell to be a heaven."
"Our knowledge is absolutely worthless unless we get down on our knees and ask God for wisdom to use it."
"Our greatest unused power is prayer."
—Dr. Hale V. Davis

"Be diplomatic and tactful in your practical Christian work. It is a sign of weakness in a person to feel that he has to go out and stir up a riot in order to do the Lord's work."

—Rev. Elmer Seger



"Set a goal. He that shoots at nothing usually hits it."
"No matter how much you know, if you can't use it, or tell about it, it is worthless."
"I have never seen a good preacher who is not a good listener."
"Find out the methods of the successful person, but never follow a failure. Don't be afraid to copy. There is a difference between copying and trying to imitate."
"Analyze your audience. There will always be someone in your audience who is in trouble. There are those who need a deeper trust in God, no tknowing where to look for it. There are those who are broken-hearted over sin's bondage and need to know freedom from it. There is always someone hiding behind his sin."
—Rev. Carl C. Harwood

"Sin is not only a grief to God; it is a grief to us, to our Christian testimony. Satan aims only at shining targets."

"Let us honor those who do not know what the Holy Spirit wants them to do, as much as those who are certain of their calling."

"There is an orderly way to build. You cannot put the top on first when you are building a tall skyscraper."

"If you have a bad temper, the Holy Spirit can change it to a compassion for the lost—an emotion that will burn in the right direction."

"God has given us a reservoir of talent to be used in His service. The Holy Spirit will not lead us into a field in which we have no talent."

"We learn too much from what we assume to be true because somebody said it or sang it or printed it on a Christmas card."

"Man can never climb to a higher position than when he is in the center of God's will for him."
—Dr. Sam Bradford

"We can never argue our own faithfulness or our future consecration against the shed blood of the Lord Jesus. The Bible says we are already perfected and sanctified by the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all."

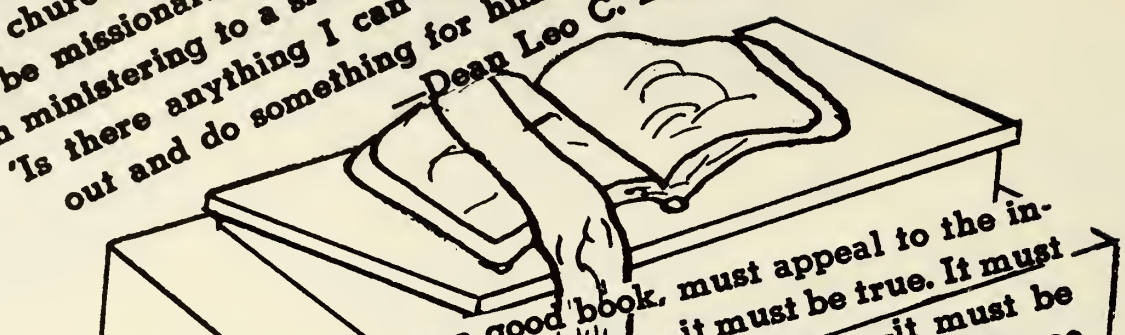
"No matter what the need, God always has the answer."

—Dr. Joshua Gravett

"It is not sufficient to have a missionary organization in a church; the individuals in that church must be missionaries."

"In ministering to a sick person, do not say: 'Is there anything I can do?' Instead, go out and do something for him."

—Dean Leo C. Lapp



"A book, to be a good book, must appeal to the intellectual nature of man—it must be true. It must satisfy the esthetic sense of man—it must be beautiful. The Word of God meets all three of these requirements."

—Rev. V. C. Oltrogge

B

"We must go into every known realm of knowledge to spread the gospel. The great arm of the church for reaching the lost is the Sunday School!"

—Mr. C. V. Egemeier

"THE BIBLE is the voice; other books are but echoes."

"GRACE is a righteous God assuming all the responsibility of guilty man."

"GIVE GOD all your time, and He will give you all His eternity."

—Rev. George Watmouth

"The trouble in the world today is caused by those who are called of God but who, having set their hands to the plow, turn back. The chains of habit are too strong to be felt, until they are too strong to be broken."

—Rev. Lee B. Long

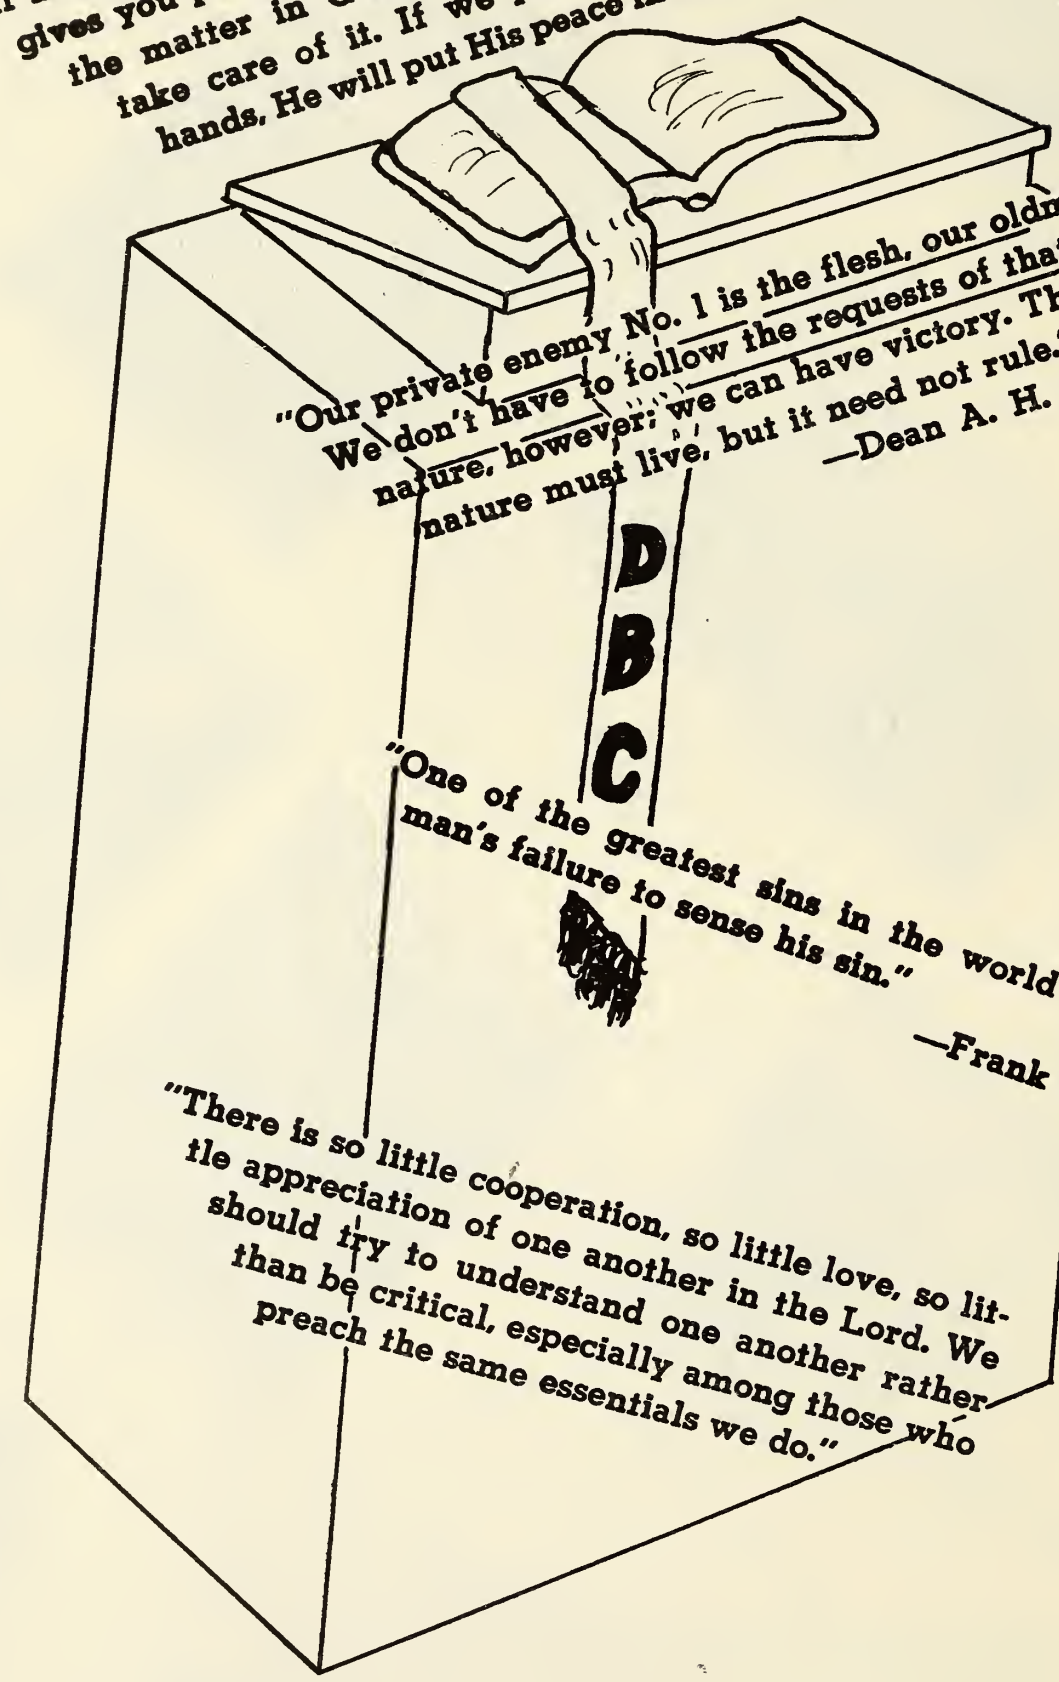
"It is not the fact that the problem is solved that gives you peace; but the fact that you have left the matter in God's hands, trusting Him to take care of it. If we put our case in His hands, He will put His peace in our hearts."



"Our private enemy No. 1 is the flesh, our oldman. We don't have to follow the requests of that old nature, however; we can have victory. The old nature must live, but it need not rule."

—Dean A. H. Yetter

"One of the greatest sins in the world today is man's failure to sense his sin."

—Frank Farmer

"There is so little cooperation, so little love, so little appreciation of one another in the Lord. We should try to understand one another rather than be critical, especially among those who preach the same essentials we do."

"A true revival campaign is not worked up; it is prayed down."

—Dr. P. J. Andreasen

We're Sorry!

There are many other people and things that should be mentioned, pictured, etc.— But we must go to press now.

You will find many blank pages to be used as album space for pictures, or for notes, or just to look at.

We hope you enjoy and appreciate this, our first year book.
